Australian Alpaca Association Ltd – 2022 National Alpaca Show

Update #2 – 14th May 2022

Some Important Details

Yes, there has been a lot happening behind the scenes to ensure that we can organize a wonderful National Alpaca Show for 2022.

As you know, it is to be hosted by the Royal Agricultural and Horticultural Society (RA&HS) of South Australia this year and will be held during the Royal Adelaide Show. With the opportunity to tell the “story of alpaca” to many thousands of people every day, our focus has been to ensure that we:

1. Convene a great halter and fleece competition, showcasing the best of the best of our wonderful alpaca
2. Optimize the chance to tell the story of alpaca to both the public and the large contingent of agribusiness who also attend the Royal Adelaide Show

To help your planning, here are a few details:

One of the ways we are able to tell the story of alpaca more widely, is with our Art, Craft and Photography competition. Instead of displaying these wonderful entries with the National Alpaca Competition, they will be displayed in the Stirling Angas Hall for the duration of the Royal Adelaide Show. This will give our clever and talented artisans a wider public audience, to whom they can share the wonder of their skill and their love of alpaca.
